CHARLES J. DEVLIN
DIES OF PARALYSIS

Kansas Mine Operator Who Recently Went Into Bankruptcy Expires in Chicago.

LIABILITIES OF $5,631,000.

Fails to Regain Health Broken Because of Overwork—Leaves Life Insurance of $677,000.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Charles J. Devlin, the widely known coal mine operator, who recently went into bankruptcy with liabilities of $5,631,000, died at St. Elizabeth's Hospital at 1159 North Dearborn street, the result of a stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Devlin had been at the hospital several days with his wife and children. He was in his health when he arrived in Chicago from New York and went direct to St. Elizabeth's.

Yesterday he was attacked with a rush of blood to his head, and despite the efforts of surgeons, succumbed to brain hemorrhage.

Mr. Devlin was 52 years old and is survived by a widow and five children. His body will be taken to La Salle, Ill.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 1.—Charles J. Devlin, who died last night at Chicago, was before his failure in July last generally credited with being one of the wealthiest men in Kansas.

He was at the head of twenty-six different companies, including coal mines, oil companies, and mercantile establishments, in Kansas, Missouri, Illinois and other States.

For many years he was one of the most active business men in the Southwest. His wealth consisted in coal-mining properties in Southern Kansas, in the vicinity of Marquette, Mo., and in Illinois.

They included the Mount Carmel coal mine, the Topeka coal mines, the Marquette third-level mine, the Devlin Coal Company, the Devlin-Miller Coal Company, and the Western Fuel Coal Company.

COLLAPSE FROM OVERWORK. As the result of overwork, Mr. Devlin collapsed last summer, and while passing from a corporation intended to take over and manage his various enterprises, the First National Bank at Topeka, Kas., of which he was the principal stockholder, failed.

His deposits in the bank, which was a State of Kansas $500,000, the city of Topeka $500,000, and various banks and companies several hundred thousand dollars additional.

The bank was found to hold close to $1,000,000. Two days later, however, it failed, caused by a run on the bank, and the failure of one Kansas City bank, the First National Bank of Kansas City, Mo., which was a big factor in the failure of the First National Bank of Topeka.

Mr. Devlin put a stop to the incorporation of the bank, and the failure of the bank was averted. The report of the bank's failure was made on November 1, 1905.

Two months ago Mr. Devlin went to Europe for his health, and returned to Chicago on his way to his home at Topeka.

Mr. Devlin was born of Irish parents in St. Louis fifty-four years ago. He had a fine physique, and was a powerful man physically and mentally. His rise in the financial world was rapid.

He started in the coal business as a clerk in a coal office, and soon became one of the leading coal operators in the Northwest.

In 1898 he was made manager of fuel properties of the Santa Fe Railway system, with general control of all the company's mines. After the Santa Fe Railway was sold, he continued to operate the company's mines and leased its coal properties to Mr. Devlin.

RECEIVER THINKS DEVLIN BANK WILL PAY CREDITORS. Topeka, Kas., Nov. 1.—Receiver T. T. Bradley of the defunct First National Bank of Topeka, Kas., today said:

"I believe that the creditors of this bank will be paid in full. The death of C. J. Devlin has not affected the insurance as good as cash in the bank's possession."
